Nathan Harger

This Cleveland-born photographer professes to be inspired by 'obsessive-compulsive behaviour, formalism- and cigarettes.' Much of his typically black- and -white and architecturally bent work is shot around both of his hometown and New York, and the graphic strong lines and silhouettes have all the makings of instant icons. And we're not the only ones who think so: his work has been exhibited internationally, and forms part of many a private collection.
